Latest News on Swine Flu:

LAUNCH OF THE NATIONAL PANDEMIC FLU LINE SERVICE

The government has today announced they plan to have a National Pandemic Flu Service up and running in England from the end of next week, subject to rigorous testing.

This will be made up of a dedicated website and call centres which will quickly be able to tell members of the public whether they have swine flu.

Further information about this service, including arrangements for Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland can be accessed on the Department of Health (England) website below:
